I am going to explain the space distribution. We have to take into account that children are very active and they will need space to move around. The teacher will have to decide on the arrangement of the classroom and some possibilities are:

- Orderly rows: the students are sitting in rows. It is suitable for activities such as explaining a grammar point, watching a video, making a self-evaluation test...
• Circles and horse-shoe shape: the students are sitting forming a circle or a semi-circle. It is suitable for activities such as debates, role-plays or storytelling, presentation of projects.

• In small groups: the students are sitting in groups of four or five and the teacher can walk around them checking the students work or helping them. It is suitable for activities such as projects, to help the cooperative learning, to practice communicative activities, dialogues...

Whenever possible, the classroom should have particular corners for different uses:

• Book corner: Having a set of adapted books of different levels that the student can borrow to foster reading habits.

• Total Physical Response corner: where you have enough space to play physical games.
• Vocabulary corner- where the new words are displayed in a poster or in flashcards and students can see them.

• Calendar corner- Where everyday you can change the calendar and students learn the days of the week and the months of the year in a different way. As well as a weather chart where you can change everyday the weather and complete a temperature bar chart.

• Games corner- Where students can play jigsaws, scrabble, crosswords or another activities very useful for fast finisher students.

• Rules corner- at the beginning of the school year you can write a chart with de students with the rules they consider more important to be in an English class. Students have to think these rules in a positive way, for example, instead of no running, walk slowly.
